The matter was reported to the police and the arrest of Sayman, who resides next door to Mr. McHugh, ensued. Sayman denied to the detectives that he entered the house to take the jewelry and claimed that he took it from some children playing in the front yard. THE HARTFORD IN 1867.

Seven or Eight Naval Vessels May Come Here.

HARTFORD EXPECTED

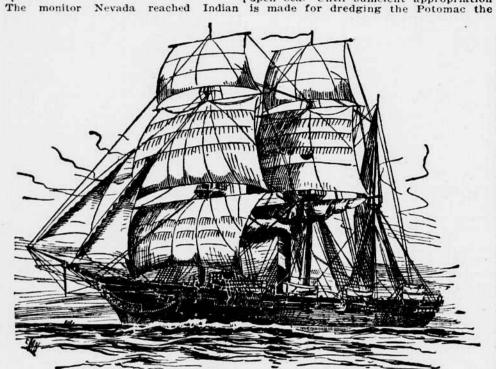

MIDSHIPMEN VISITING THE NAVAL GUN FACTORY.

Kettle Bottom Shoal Will Prevent the Heavy Draft Battle Ships From Ascending the River.

The big monitor Florida has arrived off the 7th street wharves and has taken a position in the channel beside her sister ship, the Arkansas, which arrived yesterday afternoon.

does not extend for more than one-quar-ter of a mile, but it is sufficient to pre-vent vessels of heavy draft from coming over it except at very high tide, and even then the risk of doing so is dangerous.
On many occasions it has been the desire of the officials of the navy to give the citizens of the national capital a view of the best ships of the American navy, when, in addition to the residents of the people of Washington, thousands of the people of the country have been congregated here, in attendance upon encampments of the Grand Army of the Republic and similar national celebrations, but it has been a matter of physical impossibility to do so. A naval officer in authority at the de-partment said to a reporter for The Star this afternoon: "Insofar as the navy is concerned Washington is absolutely defenseless.

None of the big ships can reach the capi-tal, and that's an end to it. It does seem too bad that the big ships cannot reach Washington, even though the only good they could probably do would be to impress upon the people of the capital some idea of the formidable force that Uncle Sam has upon the seas. Such a photograph as would be presented by half a dozen of the battleships of the United States navy in the harbor at Washington would be of ten thousand fold more ad-vantage than all of the descriptive stuff that could be written in many years. However, it is up to Congress to see that Uncle Sam's big warships can pass to and fro between the national capital and the open sea. Until sufficient appropriation

THE HARTFORD OF THE PRESENT.

It is now believed that there will be at least seven, and probably eight, warships in the Potomac river off the 7th street wharves before the week is out. Besides the Florida there will be the monitors Arkansas and Nevada, the torpedo boat destroyers Worden and Whipple, and possibly another, and the training ship Hartford, the old flagship of Admiral Farragut.

The vessels will remain here long enough for the "middles" on board to make a thorough inspection of the government works at the Washington navy yard. The rest of the ships will probably reach here tomorrow. It is probable that the whole number will return down the river about Saturday to rejoin Admiral Sands' Atlantic training squadron off Solomon's Island, in

Visit of the Middies.

The "middies," something under a hundred in number, who arrived yesterday on the Arkansas, spent the forenoon today at the navy yard, going over the gun factory and other works, under the guidance of exert toward renting them to efficient officers of the yard. The visit will good tenants and keeping them be renewed tomorrow, when they will be joined by their fellows from the Florida who are about forty in number. There is considerable doubt as to whether Rear Admiral Sands will come to the city on this cruise. He is at present on his way to the Chesapeake from New London, Conn., on board the flagship of the Atlantic squadron, and may not arrive before the smaller craft leaves here. It was said this morning by an officer of the Arkansas that as that ship was the senior ship of those which are to be at the capital the admiral would have come here on board her if he were coming at all. Capt. Vreeland of the Arkansas is quite ill with fever contracted in the Philippines and recurring at this time, and is in no condition to entertain the admiral personally, but it is not thought that this circumstance would have prevented the officer in command of the squadron from coming on board. The fact that the movements of the squadron are directed entirely by Rear Admiral Sands, who has not been in communi-cation with the Navy Department recently, has caused some uncertainty here as to the exact number of the sea dogs that will assemble before the capital city. It has been known, of course, that the battle ships would not come up the river very far on account of their great draught, but how many monitors and how many, if any, of the torpedo boat destroyers would come es far as the city has been a matter of conjecture. It is now announced that there will be seven or eight, as stated. The first class "m!ddles," as published in The Star yesterday, were transferred about ten days ago to he three monitors, Arkan-sas, Nevada and Florida, and they will all have a chance to view the works at Washington; but the exact number of lower classmen to come up on the Hartford and the torpedo boat destroyers cannot be

A Narrow Escape.

The monitor Arkansas and the tug Unity had a rather narrow escape from collision on the river yesterday afternoon. The tug with a tow of three sand-laden barges, was on her way up the channel, following the warship and but a short distance behind her. Suddenly the latter vessel swung broadside across the channel and came to anchor directly in the path of the tug, so that in order to keep the tug from striking

IN PURSUIT OF MURDERER.

Baltimore Authorities Striving to Catch Man Who Killed Albert Constable.

Interest in the investigation of the shooting of Attorney Albert Constable near Elkton, Md., a week ago has increased since the death of the victim. Should the murderer of the attorney escape punishment it will not be because the authorities and residents of Elkton and vicinity have not made a strenuous effort to apprehend State's Attorney J. Wilson Squire took prompt action as soon as he was informed of the shooting. He was not satisfied to let the sheriff and his deputies take all the responsibility in the matter of running down the murderer, but wired for three Pinkerton men to assist them. Detectives Mulholland, Corcoran and Rutledge responded, and yesterday the Baltimore authorities were requested to put two of their best sleuths on the case. Marshal Farnan assigned Detectives Kratz and Pohler, and the five detectives are at work to solve the problem.

Mr. Constable, as heretofore stated in The Star, was not rendered senseless by the wound, but was able to discuss the shooting and tell of the conditions under which the assault and robbery occurred. While the voice of the murderer appeared to be that of a white man, the victim was unable to state positively what his color was. After the shooting occurred Mr. Constable asked his assailant not to leave him on the road to die, and requested that he notify some of the colored people down the road to come to his assistance. John Holland, colored, responded in a short time, and then notified neighbors of the shooting. Holland said a strange white man came to his house and said a man, was afterward identified as Mr. Constable, was sick on the road and wanted assistance. It was in response to this appeal, he says, that he went to where Mr. Constable was lying on the road.

Holland is under arrest on suspicion, and so is William Hopps, also colored, who claims that he was at Holland's house when the shooting was done. The home of Holland is about one mile from Elkton, and the lawyer had been in the habit of walking out the road almost every day after dinner. It is the claim of the authorities that Holland and Hopps knew of his habit of taking the evening stroll, and allege that they know more of the shooting than they have told.

Hopps, it is stated, lives in a cave about one mile from the home of Polland. Holland's wife and daughter co-roborate the statement that Hopps was at their house when the shooting occurred. The prisoners are being carefully guarded, and nobody is permitted to see them other than Among those who accompanied the body of the deceased from Baltimore to his late home was Dr. Bromwell of Washington. The funeral is to take place tomorrow. The inquest will be held in Baltimore to-

FIELD DAY FEATURES.

Public Playgrounds Committee Arranging the Program.

Superintendent Burckhafter of the public playgrounds committee is arranging to hold a general field day meet in the near future, to which children from all the playgrounds in the city will be invited to take part in match games and races. The event will take place in the Coliseum, which has been kindly tendered the committee by its management free of all costs. The successful contestants will receive suitably inscribed medals.

The vacancy on the public playgrounds committee caused by the recent death of Gen. Wm. F. Spurgin, U. S. A., has been filled by the appointment of Col. Charles S. Bromwell, U. S. A., superintendent of public buildings and grounds. The committee feels very fortunate in securing the consent of Col. Bromwell to serve, as he is an enthusiastic advocate of playgrounds, and has had ample chance to observe the workings of the Boston playgrounds, where he was stationed for several years. These grounds are probably the best conducted in
